

State accolade for agency

BALMAIN small business the white agency has won the NSW Telstra Business of the Year Award.

The interactive marketing agency on Mullens St was named the best business in NSW among a field of more than 1000 entrants.

The agency also picked up the Panasonic Australia Business Award for businesses employing between 20 and 50 staff at the Telstra awards ceremony on August 18.

Craig Galvin, a Lilyfield local, began the white agency with Elizabeth Joyce of Rozelle more than three years ago.

Craig Galvin, managing director of the agency, said it was a surprise to win both the Panasonic category and the overall award on the night.

"We're always so focussed on doing good work for our clients that some-

This month, the white agency will compete against other Australian state and territory award winners for the title of 2006 Telstra Australian Business of the Year.

Sort your style once and for all

SARAH Donges' Balmain business, The Beauty Tutor, is helping people revitalise their professional image, develop a more expressive casual style and build self-confidence through appearance.

Sarah works to give clients confidence in their appearance and help them match their wardrobe to their personality, life style and body shape. One of her services is a wardrobe detox, which helps clients create a wardrobe full of basics that can be topped up on a seasonal basis.

Sarah is running workshops through The Dressing Room in Balmain, focusing on body shape and clothes to suit. She will hold weekend workshops called Turning Heads, which are all about build-
